Номокоме, Лику 20 жд. 1873.

ATTENTION has of late been called to the well known grievance in regard to the defective interpreting in the Supreme Court and in the Police Courts. The subject is by no means a new one, but it ought not to be allowed to pass without notice, whenever public aftention is directed prominently to it. It seems, however, to be the unfortunate fate of Hongkong that certain classes of evils are by custom allowed to go on without remedy, and appears to be one, although the difficulty at pointed out.

The interpreting in the Courts is often perfectly wide of the actual questions which are put. At times they are paraphrased with and spears. The house where the fire occurred * un amazing amount of circumlocution—a is rented by Messrs. Wm. Pustau & Co.'s question of three words, requiring a simple compradore. answer " yea " or "nay," affording scope for a good half an hour's conversation between the interpreter and the witness, while on the other hand an answer of considerable length is frequently rendered in half a dozen words. 28th day of July, 1879.

It is, of course, obvious that in such a case u literal translation has not been made-a feat which is often impossible, and which it of Assets and Liabilities, and extract of Profit would be unreasonable to expect invariably and Loss Account for the six months ending to be performed. But it very frequently 30th June last. happens that in this paraphrasing process, the question or answer, is very much altered | ing $923.47 brought forward from the previous in appearance, and there has been proof of late that this goes much further than has a dividend of $3 (Three Dollars) a chare, which been generally imagined.

It would, no doubt, be an impossibility to procure interpreters so thoroughly conversant with both Chinese and English, that there might not at times be a necessity for paraphrasing instead of literally translating. Occasionally, even, the actual sense is better rendered by this course than by a literal translation. But, it is obvious that there ought to be perfect socurity to the Court that this process is conducted with accuracy, a security which unfortunately is very inadequately possessed in any of the Courts at the present time. As regards the Supreme Court, we do not wish to detract in any way from the gentleman whose polyglot attainments have long been the subject of wonder on the part of some, and of scepticism on the part of others. He has for a lengthened period performed very difficult duties with more than the efficiency that can be expected of anyone who is asked to do what it must be beyond the powers of one man to accomplish thoroughly. It would require something more than a Julien or a MAX. MULLER to beable to interpret in the Canton Dialect, the Hakkah Dialect, in Portuguese, Hindostance, &c., &c., all which the Supreme Court Interpreter is supposed to accomplish with perfect efficiency and accuracy. It is not to be wondered at that at times difficulties arise, and it must often be obvious even to those who are not acquainted with Chinese, that in the case of witnesses speaking Hakkah, or some other dialect, there is considerable difficulty in carrying on the interpretation in anything like a clear way.

That this is the case is certainly no remen of common sense would be fully prepared to find. Foreigners even who are well ac- Byromiee for the purchase of onium. quainted with a single Chinese dialect would but the extremely difficult task has to be per- tiff, "Bought of Sassoons five cheets opium, had been, and that Inspector King had gone days' hard labor.

"THE CHRONICLE AND DIRECTORY" formed of rendering accurately technical wholeyear bargain, on account of Ng. hop-ting." to the house with him. He had his informer at terms, which are often barely understood in well organised system to attain this result; and the best way in which it could be done has been often suggested, but hitherto has: not been acted upon. The Courts ought to have a European of good education and well acquainted with both the Hakkah and Punti dialects to sit in the Court, and watch the translation, so as to be ready to clear up didefects which may exist. This plan was suggested long ago in these columns, and we notice that a similar suggestion has been made by our evening contemporary; in an article in which it recently very forcibly directed attention to this subject. The plan is one, indeed, which must commend itself to all who are acquainted with the nature of inter-FOREIGN SETTLEMENTS OF preting into Chinese, and vice versa. A Chinaman must be made use of in order to act as month-piece, if we wish to have the questions accurately conveyed to a native, as scarcely any foreigner can be confident that in baving to translate a great deal of miscellaneous matter he may not fall into some errors of pronunciation or idiom, which may make what he says either obscure or unintelligible -but where Chinese interpreters are thus employed, it is necessary that there should be a European in Court sufficiently acquainted with Chinese to act as a check upon him, and particularly to call the attention of the Court to any apparent misrendering of tech-

Colony would not grudge the salaries of two thoroughly efficient men for this purpose. A sum of about £800 to £1,000 a year for each would be no doubt sufficient to obtain good and reliable men, and, indeed, such services might be secured more cheaply, as there could be no reason why the services of the gentlemen deputed. to perform this duty should not be available in other Departments. It is hardly necessary to add that no better practice could possibly be had, by anyone wishing to perfect himself in speaking, than constantly watching interpretation in the Courts—so that the plan would not only meet a great want in itself, but would be the means of ultimately attaining a degree of efficiency in interpretation which could probably be arrived at in no other

The Hon. P. Ryrie, Mesers. Tonnochy and. MoLeod, and several other gentlemen belonging to firms, were immediately on the spot, and did good service. It is to be also noticed that one or two believed gentlemen arrived just as preparations were being made by the engines to leave : doubtless the cry of wolf, and there being no wolf, the night previous, was the cause of this. order to prove to bim the advantages of railway communication; but although money -was forthcoming and an influential Committee. was appointed, the idea was temperarily abandoned, in convequence of a rumour that arrangements were actually made to construct a railway between Tientsin and Peking! We are unfortunately not acquainted with the partionlars of this Quixotic scheme, so cannot enter into details as far as we should like; but we know quite enough to say that the project by no means so lucid as could be wished. It was as mistaken as the rumour which led to its temporary abandonment, The ways of man are inscrutable-past finding out, but cautious how they interfere with private interwe have seldom met with a more scrutable instance than this. Do the promoters believe that the Emperor and his mandarina way communication f We presume they must, or they would not seal their belief with so required dealing with at all, good tasts should tangible a sacrifice as that of £60,000. But have not in China any grounds for such a belief should on the face of it, bear acquiescence of as seem to exist in England. The advantages the principal insurance offices in China and I don't know why bridges should cause so which the philanthropic promoters of the idea woch trouble, but it is an undoubted fact that | consider are unknown to the Chinese, are in Shanghai Chamber's correspondence, which most determinedly set the Chinese official-mind ment. You had to start a free ferry at last, to methods of communication. The whole Chinese system is founded on a policy of isolais placed at a most awkward point, where the the people spart. What I am 'likewise' provided with are counsels to benevolence and righteonsness, and these are my only topics."-It pleases Chinese officials to affect to believe that their system is one of benevolence and rightconsness; and the very montion of " profit to the people," consonant though if may be with Western ideas of policy, is of all others the one most likely to weigh with the retrogressive party in excluding even discussion of the advantages or disadvantages of railways in Venctia or any other of the Bankow ten steamers; but conspicuous br its absence is the signature of the chief Insurance office in Obina, the one that is reputed to do more business than half the others put together—the North-China Insurance Company; and of this everyone who respects that office must be glad. Altogether the proceeding of the Hongkong Insurance Offices is about as importment as the whole affair has been throughout. A Committee of a public body cannot be too cautious bow they interfere with private interests, and most certainly the Chairman's letter to Hankow oversteps the boundary of a Chamber's duty even more than that of the Hongkong Insurance Offices, who have written to Lloyd's regarding matters which, if they required dealing with sat all, good taste should have dictated that the letter regarding them should, on the face of it. -bear-the-acquiescence-of the principal-insurance office in China, and been something more than a plagiarism of the Shanghai Chamber's correspondence, which met with almost universal disapproval, and entirely failed in substantiating any of its arguments. (To the Editor of the North-China Daily News.) Sir;-If it is permissible to criticise so bombastic a critic as your correspondent with the long Latin signature, I would respectfully suggest that a little more care might advantageously be bestowed upon his English. His thoughts are deep, but his style is not clear, nor is his syntax always perfect. Hence a difficulty is experienced in following him through the intrioncies of his argument, and even his percration is

" A committee of a public body cannot be too ests, and most certainly the Chairman's letter to Hankow oversteps the boundary of a Chamber's duty even more than that of the Hongkong Insurance Offices, who have written to Lloyd's regarding matters which, if they have dictated that the letter regarding them been semething more than a plugiarism of the met with almost universal disapproval and entirely failed in substantiating any of ite

Whatever other meaning may lie concealed in this somewhat involved sentence, there can be no doubt that the writer intends to lay down the dostrine that it is bad laste for the various insurance companies in China to take any action in their own behalf without the acaniescence of the "North-China." Not questioning for an instant the right of your correspondent to establish a canon of taste—his own letter being itself a model-I still think it would be a mistake for the other insurance companies to surrender entirely their individuality, and for their Committees of Management to content themselves with merely registering the decrees of the gigantic Company "which does more business than half of them put together." Something might indeed be said on the score of economy in favour of sabjecting the small fry to the supreme direction of the North-Obina, but so long as the forms of separate management are kept up, it is hard to expect the various Companies to abdicate their functions, even for the sake of good taste. Fully endorsing your correspondent's views as to the desirability of public bodies exercising caution in interfering with private interests, the question remains whether the private intorests of the "Canton," " Union," and other Instruce Companies are not entitled to equal consideration with those of the P. & O. Company, and it is not very clear to my mind why the self-assertion of the Insurance Companies in particular should be doomed an "immer-

But in his condemnation of the action of the Hongsong Insurance Companies, your correspondent claims to speak in the name of the public generally, and the public will probably in the main agree with him. The Hongkong offices have sent ten thousands miles for a reuledy which they hold in their own bands. If they are sincere in thinking that a sliding scale of freight and other incentives to coesn racing endanger a steamer, consistency would seem to require them to refuse to insure by any steamer influenced by such temptations, or at least to exact a higher permium for that class of risks. Your correspondent seems to doubt whether the protesting offices have any interest in the Venetia or any other atcamer from Hankow, in which case their letter to Venetia and Agamemnon, at what rates of premium have these risks respectively been taken? Is there a differential rate? If so, is eachews the temptation of a sliding scale of freight? If, I am correctly informed, it is enjoying the privilegerof a low rate of insurance which is denied to her rival. Should this prove to be the fact, the Committee of Lloyd's will have a more telling reply to the Hongkong Insurance Offices than any suggested by your correspondent.

Yours faithfully,

The present Government is prevented from written on a piece of paper, confessed any doubt addressing the slightest notification to Prince as to the Claimant's identity; but he owned that a certain caricature drawn by himself, and yes terday banded in, to which was affixed the desterday handed in, to which was affixed the description, "Teesh, 1849," was, as a matter of fact, drawn from memory in 1867, and was, consequently, not exactly authentic. Asked whether the defendant was Roger Charles Doughty there the defendant was Roger Charles Doughty there the defendant was Roger Charles Doughty tion of Monarchy or Republic, but of the famous moral order! But the great public instinct understands clearly that Monarchy and Republic were apposed to each other and that Jordyn, who followed, replied to the same question, "He is not Roger Tichborne, certainly," adding possibly as proof of strict the Assembly would not do so. We are, thereneutrality-"who he is, of course, I can't un- fore, still on the basis of provisional governdertake to say." The Major's evidence simply ment, and everyone is entitled to propose the TIC BEAUTY," and others, went to confirm what is already known as to government of his principles, his faith, his Roger Tichhorne's personal appearance, his taste, or his interest, In all these respects, broken English, and the practical jokes which Prince Napoleon is in possession of his rights HATS and BONNETS, of the newest Parisian for Ladies, Gentlemen, and Children, were played upon him. Roger was, it seems, then, but the present one has restored them to the first officer who joined after the introduction him. He is a Councillor-General; he canask a refered preliminary examinations, and the Major frankly owned to having said that if presentative of Corsica to yield his place to him; examination was to bring the Carabineers such seed and oppose in the Chamber any laws of exile away with. Major Williamson, who followed, bad but an indistinct recollection of Roger Tichborne's actual features, but felt certain that the defendant was not like the Roger Tichborne whom he remembered. He had met the Claimant at Colonel Lushington's, and against the coup d'état as energetically as he and at very reasonable prices. had had a conversation with him, in the course did on the 3rd of December, at the very of which the Claimant had fullen into the error moment when M. Magne, a member of the of supposing the 60th Rifles to be "a horse present Ministry, entered into that of M. de troop," and had generally talked in such a way as Morny. to convince the witness that he could never have been a cavalry officer. The fact is not without its importance, as the defendant, upon his crossexamination in Common Pleas, stoutly denied killed by a tiger near Seconderabad. having ever fallen into the especial mistake in A Mississippi editor boasts that his State has question. But the witness of the day-for each day bins its especial witness-was Mr. Stores Smith, who told his tale in his own way, and with the end of each sentence for the laugh which he cash and credit. No change in other linds. saw gathering. It is impossible to summarise Mr. Smith's story or to do justice to the exquisite innuento of its references to Mr. Spofforth. Its salient, points were told in the most inimitably dramatic style, and no one Union Insurance Society of Canton, new shares was surprised when Dr. Keneuly commenced his cross examination by asking the witness China Traders' Insurance Company's Shareswhether he had ever been on the stage. " If," Tichborne whom I know has grown to 26 stone, teeth, and forgotten his French, it isn't likely Houghong Fire Insurance Company's Shureshat I shall recognise him without a ludicrous account of an interview at the Claimant got to terrible cross-purposes, and strike a chord." The chord struck was a said was the sent of the Earl of Roscommon, stick! -It was nothing of the sort," Other! touch, and the net fosult of the interview was were ever in my rooms in your life," and that Mr. Smith replied, "I don't believe so either; but I was in Roger Tichborne's rooms any number of times."

In a mere summary it is impossible to collect minor points. But it is yet worthy of notice that Major Dease confirmed the Ultimatity statement as to his having skinned cats at On London .-Stonyhurst, and that Serjeant Owen more or less contrudicted Colonei Polhill Turner's evidence, and declared that on the occasion to which so much reference has been made, the Captain's troop was in some confusion. "The officers," said be, "got us into a mess, and could not get us square again, and we had to suffer for it, and got extra drill."

PRINCE NAPOLEON'S RETURN TO FRANCE.

(Journal des Débats Paris, June 8th.) Prince Napoleon has just returned to France, and the promptitule with which he has done so is a significant act of homage on his part to the new Government. The Prince was, under the reign of M. Thière, the object of an arbitrary measure of which we fully approved, but which was severely consured by the parties now represented in the Government. It is only just that reparation should be given him by those very persons who so energetically demanded it for him, and Prince Napoleon cannut think that the men who so eloquently defended in his person the rights of the citizen should be capable of now interfering with his free exercise of it. For our part, we have never denied the strict right of Prince Napoleon, or a any other member of the Imperial family, to return to France. We have openly admitted that the administrative measure of which he was the object was outside the common law, but that it was adopted against a person who was bimself outside the common law. What we have said, and what we maintain, is that the law protects only its own subjects, and that those for whom only exceptional rights are created must accept their burdens as well as their advantages. King Louis Philippe, who was, however, a strict observer of legality broke the law when he had Prince Louis Bonaparte removed from the Strasburg prison in order to save him from the hands of justice; and it was the cause of the acquittal of the other prisoners that the principal culprit had been saved from the law. . When the abrogation of the laws of exile against the Bourbons 1714 E Undersigned having been appointed vast margins and vacant spaces which have was proposed in the present Assembly, M Thiers made reservations which every one understood. He said then, "I thought that I could accept the proposed measure on condition that I, being intrusted with the duty of maintaining order in the country, should reserve the right of acting against all if I should think France threatened, subject to bringing the mufter immediately before the Assembly."

We say that this language are understood, and it was, indeed, clear that it did not aim at the pripass of the house of Harrion. In the then state of legislation the Bonapartes could legally return to France, and the Bourbons could not. This was very well explained by M Butbie, now a minister, when he said ! that the law of 1848 which had put an end to the exile haby Bonaparte princes being still in force, the members of that family could now cross the frontier without eucountering any legal obstacle." The eloquent M. Bathie added :-"In short, to vote against the abrogation of the IMPERIAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY with natives who understand nothing but Chilaws of exile against the Bourbons would be to maintain an inexplicable inequality between the old reigning families." Now, as M. Depeyre, one of the most ardent members of viz:the majority, said, no less logically and Detached & semi-detached Dwelleloquently, the law of decheance voted at Bordeaux does not constitute the law of banishment, and in penal matters a formal text is rigorously necessary.

titled to come and live at Paris in a house in the Place Vendôme, as his cousin did in 1848 He would not have done so under the personal government of M. Thiers, because be was warn-
